

Are You In The Right Place?

This is a loaded question. Can you ever be in the “perfect place”? Will you know when you are?

The question today is simply ask yourself, “Am I in the right place?”

How will you know?

#1) Know Your Strengths & Gifts

Do some personal assessments to learn as much about yourself as possible. While these aren't always 100% accurate, some lights will come on and you'll learn more about yourself as you do these. I would start with Strengthfinders, Myers-Briggs and DISC.

#2) Talk To Your Friends, Co-Workers & Family

Ask the people closest to you what they think? Do they think you're in the right place? Are you working in areas of strength or are you missing out? Get their input?

#3) Talk With Your Employer

Have an open conversation about your gifts, your dreams and any ideas you might have to adjust your current role to better align with what you're the best at. Often this leads to change.

#4) Be Patient

Change takes time. Sometimes we have to work outside of our strengths because there's a job to be done. Take some small steps towards discovering more about who you are and what your greatest contribution could be! Be patient. This won't happen overnight.
